Background: *Carpenter William Henry Hudson, immigrated to Sydney from England in 1846. He established a joinery company in Redfern around 1855 and during the 1870s this venture expanded to include engineering and this necessitated the establishment of new premises in Clyde near Parramatta. William's son George also joined the company and he took control of the joinery business in Redfern, The Company became George Hudson & Son.

George Hudson & Son were pioneers in pre fabrication and produced doors, windows and other timber building elements. By 1870 Hudson's joinery in Redfern was able to produce 500 pairs of sash windows and 200 doors per week. The resulting economy of scale made building components cheaper and served to reduce the price of homes overall. Around 1900 the company began to produce partially prefabricated timber houses and in 1905 the company became a public company as George Hudson & Son Ltd.

For much of the twentieth century 'Hudson Ready-Cuts' were a popular and affordable form of suburban housing in Sydney. From 1917 Hudson's presented display homes at the Sydney Easter Show, and the company produced annual catalogues of designs that were an influence on building trends across Sydney. The 1950s was the peak of Hudson's success with the growing number of owner builders using their products. Note: This cat. is dated 1/1/1914.

The company became George Hudson Homes in 1959 and they continued to produce kit-homes into the 1970s.

INTRODUCTION.

FROM time to time we issue new Catalogues containing more designs than the former issues and proving most useful to our customers. This issue will no doubt win the approbation of all who peruse it.

Although there are many who will find that one or more of the plans shown in this Catalogue are just what they require, it is possible there will be others who prefer something different to anything to be found herein, and in such cases we invite the fullest inquiry and suggestions, and we will promptly furnish quotations for new designs.

Where MATERIALS are quoted we do not include Bricks, Lime or Cement, Paint, Chimney Pots.

Where BUILDING ERECTED is quoted, we do include Bricks and Paint, Lime and Cement, but we assume the site is level, easy of access, and not far from our Works.

We erect the buildings anywhere at Sydney rates, plus freights, fares, cartages, and the time lost by the Artisans travelling to and from the site, and the extra wages paid for working away from Sydney.

Municipal permission and all the supervision of work and engagement of workmen is undertaken by us when we agree to erect a cottage, so that the Customer has no further anxiety. We finish the building, with the exception that we do not lay on Gas, nor Water, nor connect with the Sewerage.

Stove is not included, except in buildings of five (5) rooms and over.

Copper, Tubs, Baths and Outhouse are included only where shown in the plan or mentioned in quotation.

Prices are subject to fluctuation without notice.
